About the author

Bobbie Smith Bryant is a native Kentuckian, born in the Black Patch of Calloway County. She is proud of her family's farming heritage, providing marketing and promotional assistance, as well as historic and genealogical research, to Smith Farms.

Bobbie also serves the Kentucky League of Cities as a community development advisor. For more than twenty years, she has assisted Kentucky cities with community and economic development issues.

A rising Kentucky author, Bobbie previously published Passions of the Black Patch: Cooking and Quilting in Western Kentucky, Forty Acres & A Red Belly Ford: The Smith Family of Calloway County, and Farming in the Black Patch, published by Acclaim Press in 2015. Since the early 1800s, when settlers came to explore the Jackson Purchase and Banister Wade made a permanent home along the West Fork of Clark's River in 1820, the area that would become Calloway County has been a center for both agriculture and business, beautiful homes and rich traditions, a place where people are known for hard work, steadfast faith, and family values.

To celebrate our county's upcoming 200th Anniversary in 2022, the Calloway County Fiscal Court is proud to announce a new comprehensive historical book of the county, its people and communities, with hundreds of photographs through the years.
